

Creating a Path to Success for Your Child

High Expectations

The expectations you have for your child are powerful! In this section, you will learn how to set high expectations for your child to promote their success.

Partnering With Your School

When your child enters school, you and the school become partners in their education. In this section, you will learn strategies to promote effective communication and engagement with your child's school.

Learning About Your Child's Educational Progress

Parents often have many questions about their child's progress. This section helps explain your child's test scores, grades, and academic progress. It also provides guidance on questions to ask school staff.

Supporting Your Child At Home

No matter how old your child is, there are things you can do at home to contribute to their success at school. This section contains information and ideas that support your child's learning and development at home.

